

Our advanced
surgical techniques
leave a small mark.

Our personal care
leaves a big impression.

For a patient, a surgical procedure is never routine. That's something we always keep in mind. So our first priority is ensuring your safety and comfort. At Crittenden Regional Hospital, our highly trained, experienced surgeons and support team use the most modern techniques available, including minimally invasive procedures to reduce a patient's recovery time.

But the quality of our care extends far beyond the operating room. By getting to know each patient better, we can provide individualized care that respects his or her personal needs. That's what makes us different and why so many patients from the Mid-South region are choosing to have their surgery done right here.
